contributions highlight the tensions in which mothers get entangled they show mothers agency or lack thereof in negotiating the environmental material and economic reality of their feeding care work while upholding other ideals of taste nutrition health and fitness shaped by cultural norms the contributors to mothers and food go beyond the normative discourses of health and nutrition experts and beyond the idealistic images that are part of marketing strategies they explore what really drives mothers to maintain or change their family s foodways for better or for worse paying a particular attention to how this shapes their maternal identity questioning the motto according to which people are what they eat the chapters in this volume show that mothers cannot be categorized simply by how they feed themselves and their family
