this book looks at how the human brain got the capacity for language and how language then evolved its four parts are concerned with different views on the emergence of language with what language is how it evolved in the human brain and finally how this process led to the properties of language part i considers the main approaches to the subject and how far language evolved culturally or genetically part ii argues that language is a system of signs and considers how these elements first came together in the brain part iii examines the evidence for brain mechanisms to allow the formation of signs part iv shows how the book's explanation of language origins and evolution is not only consistent with the complex properties of languages but provides the basis for a theory of syntax that offers insights into the learnability of language and to the nature of constructions that have defied decades of linguistic analysis including including subject verb inversion in questions existential constructions and long distance dependencies denis bouchard's outstandingly original account will interest linguists of all persuasions as well as cognitive scientists and others interested in the evolution of language the book proposes a paradigm shift in language planning and language policy in africa for the past fifty years the dominant model has been the hegemonic model whereby a language of wider communication lwc is imposed on minority languages it is now time for a paradigm shift in favor of a more egalitarian model in which all the languages spoken in the same country irrespective of their size are planned the paradigm shift concerns four critical areas status planning cost benefit planning acquisition planning and corpus planning such a shift is justified for the following reasons first the hegemonic model has a dismal track record of success in africa and elsewhere second the hegemonic model exacerbates linguistic conflicts in many countries consequently policy makers shun it for fear of jeopardizing the fragile social fabric in their respective countries last a shift away from the hegemonic model is recommended because it is too costly to implement the democratic model is undergirded by the strategic game theory proposed by david laitin it forecasts a 3 1 language outcome for most african countries this outcome supports the three language formula now called for by the united nations development program undp
