Rethinking the Politics of Globalization

rethinking humanity as a concept in our age of globalization and its relevance to the social and political reality of our times are the topic of this book it calls for the reclaiming of humanism as an effective response to the conflict turmoil and violence we witness in the world today concepts of humanity and humanism have become suspect of naivete at best and guilty of bad faith and repressive ideologies at worst yet hope for improvement is incorrigibly human the concept of humanity still holds enormous attraction to intellectuals and humanistic scholars at the same time it is important to realize that the critique of humanism is very much based on and limited to western social and historical experience to re conceptualize humanity and humanism from a truly global perspective will help in reclaiming a more inclusive kind of humanism in this sense a cross cultural perspective is important for reclaiming humanism in our age of globalization the present volume is the result of such an effort the diversity of the authors views speaks eloquently to the complexity of the concept of humanity or what constitutes the distinctly human and therefore the necessity to have an in depth dialogue on the fate of humanity a fresh analysis of policy convergences across nations which identifies their key driving forces to what extent and in which direction can we empirically observe a convergence of national policies in which areas and for which patterns of policy is convergence more or less pronounced this text addresses these central questions with clarity and rigour with growing economic and institutional interlinkages between nation states it is often assumed that there is an overall trend towards increasingly similar policies across countries comparative research on the domestic impact of globalization and european integration however reveals that policy convergence can hardly be considered as a dominant and uniform tendency which can be taken for granted although a number of factors have been suggested in order to account for the rather mixed empirical picture we still have limited knowledge about the causes and conditions of cross national policy convergence a particular the central mechanisms and conditions affecting both degree and level of cross national policy convergence are yet not well understood this book will be of great interest to all students and scholars of the european union european politics and international relations this is a special issue of the leading journal of european public policy
